MORE TOWBOATS FOR TENNESSEE

Big Four Tie Company Brings
Two From Missouri

Will Add to Paducah Fleet and the Actual Tonnage of This City.

FIREMEN GET MORE MONEY

Two new towboats arrived last night from the Missouri river to enter the tie business in the Tennessee river. They are the Thomas H. Denton and the Ida Mack and will be operated by the Big Four Tie company of Cairo, which is an auxiliary of the Big Four railroad. Captain E. Schofield is in command of the new company and is under contract to bring 50,000 ties a month out of the upper Tennessee river for 5 years. Nineteen barges are being built for this company at Bean Rock on the Tennessee river and Captain Schofield was looking today at five barges in the local harbor for immediate use. Nine of the new barges have been completed.

All the ties will be unloaded at Cairo, but while that town will be the terminal of the line, Paducah as the natural gateway to the Tennessee river will be the real headquarters of the fleet. In the first place it is a matchless winter harbor and anchorage place in the summer time. Then owing to the number of tie companies already operating from Paducah, it is the center of labor, white and colored, in the tie business. Engineers, captains, and the entire crew of a boat could be gotten here more easily than at Cairo. Many towboats unload at Joppa half-way to Cairo, but they come here for their stores. The benefit of this additional line of towboats will be felt almost solely in this city. Captain Schofield said this morning that his company probably would buy another towboat within a few weeks, when they had operated long enough to understand the needs of the contract.

Paducah, already the largest river point between Pittsburgh and New Orleans, will be shoved up another notch above comparison, with the addition of this fleet. The local branch of the Marine Engineers' association is the largest one on the rivers, and while other points have many idle members, every engineer in Paducah is at work, who wants a position, and an actual scarcity exists. The Ayer-Lord Tie company yesterday voluntarily raised the salaries of its firemen $10 a month. This unprecedented action was necessary to get the men. The salary of the chief engineer on the Pavana of their fleet also was raised $10 a month. With mid-summer already here, there is no prospect of any of the towboats laying up and only extremely low water will cause any slack in the business.

RAISING MONEY FOR ISLAND CREEK BRIDGE.

Whether the citizens of Mechanicsburg secure street car service will depend upon the amount of subscription obtained for the bridge that will have to be erected to span island creek. As understood the plan is for a separate bridge over the creek about a square distant from the bridge at Third street.

Big Revival at Grahamville.
Miss Birdie Crow, a noted woman evangelist, will begin a revival this evening at the tobacco factory in Grahamville. Already interest has been manifested before any meetings have been held and it promises to be one of the most successful revivals ever in Grahamville.

HEAT OVERCOMES FARMER IN FIELD

Overcome with the heat while working in the field with hay, Bernard Kroos, a farmer of the Eden's Hill neighborhood, was in a serious condition for a time. Mr. Kroos was in the field working, when he became ill and returned to his home, which is on the summit of Eden's hill. He went to bed and shortly arose to get something in the room when he fell to the floor unconscious. His wife heard the fall and rushed into the room and found him on the floor. With the use of restoratives she soon revived him and today he is improving rapidly.

While working in a hay field at his farm about three miles from the city on the Mayfield road, Frank Boatright, a farmer, was overcome with heat yesterday afternoon, and for a time was seriously ill. Dr. R. C. Gore, of Lone Oak attended him, and today he was resting comfortably.

Ed Atkins, 28 years old, of Boysville, was drowned in a creek near his home Sunday evening. He and several friends were in a swimming race when some of the party noticed that his head was under the water, when they reached him he was dead. It is supposed that he was caused by heart failure. He leaves a wife and four children. He was a brother-in-law of Clifford Morris, formerly of this place.

Florence, Italy, July 11.—Search for the Marchioness Magdalene Castellaro, member of the Italian nobility, ended today beside a grave. The marchioness was entombed alive with a corpse, the body being found in the coffin of Signor Rossi. It is presumed she visited the cemetery to pray at the grave of her dead sweetheart and wandered by mistake into the vault, where Rossi's body lay. She fainted and fell into a casket. Attendants presumably clamped the lid on the casket in the darkness and afterwards the marchioness was asphyxiated.

The warehouse contained 22 barrels, with approximately 700 gallons of grape wine, from four to eight years old. The fire took place shortly after midnight, and the wine added to the flames, so that all efforts to stay them were unavailing.

A News-Democrat Sidelight

It is well known to every Paducahian that when the News-Democrat warmly espouses any cause editorially it is in the interest of some private enterprise of persons associated with that naive periodical; but until yesterday it was never known that the paper takes sufficient interest in the financial welfare of its employees to devote considerably more than a column of space and two editorial leaders to the mere acquisition of some out-of-town correspondence.

Arthur E. Bailey, a reporter for the News-Democrat, and the letter to the Courier-Journal, which follows, was written under a News-Democrat letter head July 8, the day the editorial appeared, and it was mailed to the correspondent of the paper in this city, with the indorsement across its face with which the quotation opens.

"Here's a knock from one of your distinguished citizens:"
Managing Editor Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky.
Dear Sir:—I enclose you today's leading editorial in the News-Democrat, which explains itself. Truly, ARTHUR E. BAILEY.

"Correspondents of the various metropolitan newspapers have it in their power to do a community or a person great good or great injury. Often through inexperience or perhaps personal spite on the part of the correspondent 'specials' appear in daily papers that bring a measure of censure on the paper giving them publicity when in fact the entire fault lies with the correspondent."

COAL SHIPMENTS TO PHILIPPINES

Immediate Delivery

SIGNIFICANT TO ENGLAND.

London, July 11.—Extensive emergency orders of Welsh steam coal to be sent to the Philippines were placed by the United States, according to the Central News. Extreme significance is attached to this action in view of the critical status of the dispute between the United States and Japan. Orders, it is stated, call for shipment of 40,000 tons of coal immediately.

Captain Billy Smith will take the Castalia out Saturday with all the big men in the Ayer-Lord Tie company on an inspection trip to the Tennessee river as far as Chattanooga. Deb Mason will be engineer.

MOYER ON STAND IN HAYWOOD CASE

Testifies to Connection With Miner's Federation

Contradicts Statements of Orchard and Explains Relations Between Witness and Himself.

MANY MESSAGES MENTIONED.

Boise, July 11.—Cross-examination of Charles Moyer was continued in the Haywood trial today. The defense is jubilant today over the effect of Moyer's appearance on the stand yesterday. Prosecution concedes witness favorably impressed the jury and court.

Charles H. Moyer, besides making a positive denial of all the crimes attributed to him and the other federation leaders, by Orchard, offered an explanation of the unsolicited appearance of the Western Federation of Miners as defendants of Orchard immediately after his arrest at Caldwell for the murder of Steunenberg.

Moyer swore that it was Jack Simpkins who engaged Attorney Miller at Spokane to go to Caldwell to represent Orchard, then known as Thomas Hogan, and that it was at the request of Simpkins that the witness and Haywood subsequently advanced $1,500 from the funds of the federation to meet the expense of defending Orchard. At various stages of the recital the defense offered in evidence a number of documents including a heretofore undisclosed cipher telegram which Simpkins sent to federation headquarters and the union at Silver City, Idaho, covering moves to protect the federation which was charged with the crime a few days after it occurred.

Moyer began by saying he got his first knowledge of the crime from Denver newspapers and that on the evening of January 4, five days after the crime, a telegram in the federation's cipher—a code in which certain numerals represented the alphabet and published in the ritual of the organization which was used to transmit the password to local unions—came to Haywood from Spokane. It was long and the translation was difficult and uncertain, but he and Haywood figured next day it was signed by Simpkins and read: "Cannot get lawyer to defend Hogan. Answer."

Moyer testified that he was suspicious about the message, the newspapers having already charged the crime up to the federation and that he decided to consult John Murphy, general counsel for the federation, before he took any steps.

Moyer said that he left for Chicago that afternoon but that Haywood took the matter up and opened communication with the union at Silver City and made arrangements to engage Attorney Nugent to look after the interests of the federation and defend Orchard if necessary. Defense produced copies of this correspondence and all of it was read into the record.

Continuing, Moyer said Miller came to Denver about the first of the following month, bringing with him the record of Orchard's preliminary hearing. Miller went to Denver at the suggestion of Simpkins, a request from Simpkins that the federation

GIRL SNEEZES AND CAUSES HER BACKBONE TO CRACK

Los Angeles, Cal., July 11.—Miss Maude Warrington, No. 1348 Figueroa street, sneezed her backbone out of joint.

She disarticulated the lumbar vertebrae by the violence of her sneeze, and heard the joints pop out of position.

It was just a simple, everyday sort of a sneeze that did the damage, a sneeze that should have been mildly enjoyable, but it has kept Miss Warrington in a state of excessive pain for three days, and has made her very much afraid of indulging again in what has proved such an expensive luxury.

As the titillation of the sneeze reached its emphatic degree, Miss Warrington was convulsed for a moment by the effort, and as she ker-ker-achewed, she heard a sharp snap about her person, and the next instant was overwhelmed with pain and realized that something serious had happened to her spinal column.

She became prostrated at once and could hardly summon help. Aid was sent for to the California Hospital, and a physician, after a hasty examination, saw the trouble, and by a painful but not serious process replaced the rebellious vertebrae.

The young woman is now said to be all right, but was advised to avoid catching any more influenzas.

Medical men generally say that it is the first instance of a sneeze producing such a serious result. Dislocations of the vertebrae are not at all common in medical practice, occurring only occasionally from violent causes.

Miss Warrington, who is a very pretty woman, is now entirely recovered, but her suffering until the dislocation was corrected was agonizing, as it affected her entire nervous system, and especially the acutely susceptible sciatic nerve. The pain was described as being almost as intense in every portion of her body as it was in the seat of the injury, and her endurance would have been exhausted if proper aid had not been provided just when it was.

Vienna's Look Ahead.

Statisticians declare that in 1950 Vienna will have a population of 4,000,000. The city council, looking far ahead, is already considering how best to preserve for the coming generations a goodly supply of open air spaces. It is proposed to surround the city with a broad girdle of forest lands and meadows, a somewhat ambitious project, which it is estimated would cost 50,000,000 kronen, or more than $2,000,000. The Austrian capital is already unusually well furnished with public parks and gardens in the midst of the city, to say nothing of the magnificent expense of the Prater, with its miles of avenues and walks stretching down to the main stream of the Danube.—Pall Mall Gazette.

"I am thinking seriously of marrying," said Miss Strongmind, "and you'd be glad to hear that I'm now on my way to speak to your father."

To Balance.

For more than a week the teacher had been giving lessons on the dog, and so when the Inspector came down and chose that very subject there seemed to be every prospect of the class distinguishing itself on brilliant essays about our canine friend. Things were progressing quite satisfactorily, and the master was congratulating himself on the trouble he had taken, when, alas! a question was asked which made him tremble for the reputation of his scholars.

"Why does a dog hang his tongue out of his mouth?" asked the Inspector. "Yes, my boy," he said to a bright-looking lad who held up his hand, while the light of genius was in his eye.

"Please, sir," cried the pupil, "it's to balance his tail!"

And the teacher groaned in anguish.

The dandruff disappeared; a new crop of hair has taken root, and the bald spot is rapidly being covered." Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ that digs up the scalp in scales as it burrows its way to the root of the hair, where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out. THE KING OF BLOOD PURIFIERS

For more than forty years S. S. S. has worn the crown of public approval and has been recognized as the King of Blood Purifiers. It has demonstrated its ability to CURE in thousands upon thousands of cases of blood and skin diseases until it is regarded today as the most reliable and safest of all blood medicines.

Pure blood means strong, vigorous bodies, well nourished systems, steady nerves, and all the machinery of life working in harmony with nature—thus insuring perfect health. Impure or diseased blood means the opposite of all this; any impurity, humor or poison in this vital fluid acts injuriously on the system and affects the general health. Pustular eruptions, pimples, rashes and the various skin affections show that the blood is in a feverish and diseased condition, as the result of too much acid or the presence of some irritating humor. Chronic Sores and Ulcers are the result of morbid, unhealthy matter in the blood, while Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, etc., are all deep-seated blood disorders that continue to grow worse as long as the poisons which produce them remain in the blood.

All blood troubles are not acquired.

Through the blood disease germs are transmitted from one generation to another. Parents hand down a tainted circulation to their children, and we see its effects manifested in various ways. The skin has a waxy, pallid appearance, the eyes are often weak, glands of the neck enlarged, and, as the taint has been in the blood since birth, the entire health is usually affected, and the system weakened from want of nourishing, health-giving blood.

In all blood troubles S. S. S. has proven itself "The King of Blood Purifiers." It goes down into the circulation and removes all poisons, humors, waste or foreign matter, and makes this life-stream pure and health-sustaining. Nothing reaches inherited blood troubles like S. S. S.; it removes every particle of the taint, purifies and strengthens the weak, deteriorated blood, supplies it with the healthful properties it needs and establishes the foundation for good health. As a tonic S. S. S. has no equal, and it will be found especially bracing to weak, anaemic persons.

One of the greatest points in favor of S. S. S. is that it is purely vegetable, made from nature's healing, cleansing, health-producing roots, herbs and barks. It is the one medicine that may be taken with absolute safety by the youngest child or the oldest member of the family. Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Scrofula, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood troubles are cured permanently by S. S. S., and so thorough is the cleansing of the blood that no trace of the disease is left to break out in future years, or to be transmitted to offspring. If your blood is out of order begin the use of S. S. S., The King of Blood Purifiers, and restore this vital fluid to its normal healthy condition, and enjoy the blessing of good health. Book on the blood and any special medical advice desired will be furnished free of charge to all who write.

HUGHES STRONG IN HIS OWN STATE

Fates Seem to be Playing Into
His Hand

How He Threw Responsibility for Extra Session Onto the Wadsworth Clique.

LOOKS LIKE A POSSIBILITY.

Washington, D. C., July 11.—Apparently the stars in their courses are fighting to keep Gov. Hughes, of New York, before the people in such a way as to make him more and more a presidential candidate.

The beginning of the special session of the legislature convened by him and the message in which he throws down the gauntlet to the Wadsworth clique and warns them that the people will not tamely submit to legislative apportionment on old partisan lines are apparently but the opening guns in a straight out fight between the government and the old Republican forces.

Whether he wins or not in the legislature and whether he succeeds in getting the apportionment and direct nomination bills passed, he is certain to strengthen his hold on the people.
Moreover, the special session, coming as it does in the middle of a dull summer season, will surely give the people something to think about in a political line.

Hughes' Career Like Cleveland's.

Whether the governor is an adroit politician or not remains to be seen, but everything he has done since the date of his inauguration and, in fact,
since his nomination has strongly brought to mind the series of political events which made Grover Cleveland
governor of New York and then president of the United States.

There has been a good deal of chuckling here at the clever fashion in which Gov. Hughes, without losing his dignity in the slightest degree, fastened responsibility for the extra session upon Speaker Wadsworth and his associates. The father of the speaker, who was so long a congressman, made himself distinctly unpopular here in Washington by his unnecessary attack on President Roosevelt. The president was largely responsible for the election of young Wadsworth as speaker of the New York assembly, that action having been taken before the break with his father.

When the president offered to help out Gov. Hughes in his fight on the Wadsworth combination the offer was coldly received. The governor made it plain that he did not propose to carry on the fight on patronage lines. There was reported a coolness between the president and the governor for awhile, but it was only reported and there never was anything more than a slight misunderstanding between the two men.

His Position Getting Stronger.

According to the politicians, Gov.
Hughes has strengthened himself a great deal by making it evident that his fight with the legislature is carried on along the highest possible lines. By refusing to accept the patronage offered him by the president, the governor has concentrated responsibility for the fight entirely upon himself.

The regular session was long and sensational, and every message the governor sent was temperate but entirely forcible. He pushed his public utilities bill through in spite of the united opposition of all the great corporations in New York City. The people are beginning to realize that that bill, if it can be successfully executed, with an honest governor and an able commission, will do a great deal more to solve the trust question than the more or less spasmodic proceedings by the federal government.

Reapportionment of the state on an honest basis was demanded by the governor, and was defeated at the regular session simply and solely because Wadsworth objected to having the old districts cut up. It was admitted the state had not been honestly apportioned, and that the constitutional limitations upon the right of the legislature to cut up the state had not been observed. The personal element was so strong in the assembly that in spite of the influence of the governor Speaker Wadsworth was able to defeat the apportionment bill

for his own interests.

Rebuke to Wadsworth Adroit.
Without any unnecessary fireworks
the governor called the legislature back in an extra session. The one feature of his message which created amusement and delight in Washington was the paragraph in which he said:

"The failure to provide a suitable apportionment at the regular session in the absence of any public reason has been a serious disappointment to the people. To avoid further public inconvenience it is of great importance that the matter should now be disposed of promptly. Obviously such a question, involving political consequences, gives rise to a conflict of interests, and its solution cannot be hoped for without personal sacrifices. But the test of public spirit lies in the readiness to make such sacrifices, and do emphatically demand, that public duty shall not be subordinated to personal interests or convenience."

There have been few instances in politics where a public rebuke has been administered so adroitly and with such dignity. In the opinion of New York men this one paragraph,
although it may not secure a satisfactory apportionment bill, will mean the political death of the Wadsworth combination, both father and son.

Luck Drives Him Along.

In less than a year Gov. Hughes, with quiet persistence has made himself champion of drastic state regulation of corporations, of an honest apportionment, and of direct nomination by the people to avoid partisan bossism. He already stands for a good deal more in New York than Grover Cleveland ever did. He is unpopular with his own political machine just as Cleveland was, and yet
Cleveland was nominated repeatedly.

It is whispered among New York men here that Gov. Hughes still has a large amount of ammunition of an unexpected character. It is believed that when he gets through with his fight for apportionment and direct nomination he will proceed to demand other and equally popular political reforms.

Nothing could be better timed.
The results of the extra session and the fight between the governor and the Republican ring in the legislature will be fresh in the minds of the people when they come to discuss presidential candidates seriously next winter.

JAPANESE CABAL CAUSES TROUBLE

All Emanates From Washington and is False

Reason State Department and Japanese Government Takes No Notice.

IT IS IMPERIAL POLITICS

Washington, D. C., July 11.—It is about time American people should understand the character and extent of the political propaganda which is in progress in this country for the overthrow of the ministry in power in Japan, says a Washington correspondent. The avowed object of this propaganda is to secure better treatment for Japanese in the United States. Its real object is the establishment by the people of Japan of a new government, made up of members of the progressive party, with Count Okuma as premier.

The man who claims to be taking care of the interests of the progressive party in Washington is Dr. Masaji Miyakawa, a clever Japanese, who holds a number of degrees received from American colleges, and who alleges that he is a graduate of various high schools in his native country, where, he says, he has lectured on international law before the naval cadets of Japan.

It is true he has degrees. His home career is not so well authenticated. He has been in the United States off and on for eight years,
though he spent some time in Russia getting information for the Japanese army and served as a war correspondent in China during the boxer revolt.

Dispatches Are Myths.

He speaks English well and knows how to make newsy translations of dispatches taken from old Japanese papers.

This is what he did a few days ago
when he gave to the press the substance of an alleged official confidential memorandum said to have been issued by Foreign Minister Hayashi and describing the attitude of the Japanese government on the question of the limitation of immigration.

The authenticity of this memorandum is denied in well informed circles, and an investigation discloses the fact that Dr. Miyakawa read the memorandum which he disseminated in an opposition newspaper of Tokyo.

Miyakawa claims to be the owner of a paper in San Francisco called the Japan Tribune, a sheet of no
standing, according to reports here.
Its profits must be small, for Miyakawa's supply of cash, according to what is known, is limited.

He is in constant telegraphic correspondence with disgruntled Japanese on the Pacific coast. If he receives any cablegrams, as he claims,
they are few and far between.

Tokio "Cable" of Whole Cloth.

He alleged recently he had been advised from Tokyo that Ambassador Aoki was to be recalled, and the publication of this information gave rise to a great deal of comment in this country and caused officials to declare if the ambassador were withdrawn the action could only be regarded as an indication that Japan proposed to adopt the "malted fish"
policy, and would necessitate preparations by this government.

It has since developed that there was absolutely no foundation for the report of Viscount Aoki's recall. The ambassador is to remain indefinitely
in the United States, and possesses the full confidence of his government, which includes the emperor as well as the ministry.

Miyakawa said a few days ago
that he could stop the agitation in Japan in a moment if he chose to do so.
He also could stop the agitation in the United States by failing to give to innocent newspapers and reporters some of the information he extracts from Japanese papers. It is the knowledge of Miyakawa's doings

that is responsible, in a great measure, for the refusal of the state department to express concern over the Japanese situation.

At the same time, it is apparent that the representative of the progressive party is doing his political work well, but the officials say that if he were really patriotic he would not be seeking to embroil his country and the United States, even though thereby he might secure the domination of his friends in the Japanese government.

Expulsion Would Dignify Him.

Of course, if the United States chose, it could expel Miyakawa as an alien dangerous to its peace and safety, and there would be no protest from Japan, but this would give to the man a dignity he does not deserve, and authorities rely upon the common sense of the American people to pay no attention to his political rookeries.

Miyakawa has sought to make capital with his friends by stating that he spent three-quarters of an hour with the president. As a matter of fact, he was with the president only a few minutes, when the latter was in Washington several weeks ago, and he was received because he had written a book on the American constitution which he desired to present to Mr. Roosevelt.

The president has been especially anxious to show courtesy to visiting Japanese, but it is certain he would not have received Miyakawa if he had known whom he represented and the political movement he was furthering. Miyakawa is not received at the Japanese embassy, and when General Kuroki was in Washington
he made no effort to get in touch with him.

Both Nations Want Truth Known.

There is no doubt that the governments of both the United States and Japan are concerned seriously over the press agitation in connection with the relations of the two countries and are anxious to stop the publication of mischievous reports,
the only effect of which is to inflame
public sentiment.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

In an editorial leader last evening styled "More Light on a Dark Subject," the News-Democrat attempted to confuse the policy of The Sun with the correspondence of a Louisville newspaper. An editorial leader of July 8 was read with little concern, as it was manifestly an inspired effort on the part of somebody connected with the News-Democrat to embarrass the correspondent of the Louisville paper, possibly with the ultimate end in view of securing the correspondence, with its remuneration, for himself or someone else.

As to the merits of the charge that the article was designed purposely to injure Professor Carnagey, The Sun has nothing to say, nor is The Sun defending the correspondent or his correspondence. The complaint is a matter that should be taken up with the management of the newspaper in question, not with The Sun. But the motive of the News-Democrat in making the charge is patent from the fact that there was nothing apparent in the article that could be construed into an attack on Superintendent-elect Carnagey. It is true there will be ten vacancies on the school board to be filled this fall, and Superintendent-elect Carnagey probably will have with him practically a new board—and let us pause to speak for him the hearty co-operation of that board.

One must observe with some amusement the conclusion of the too evidently inspired editorial that the article inferred that the school trustees

resigned because Professor Carnagey

is coming; an inference preposterous,

because the article says these very men elected Professor Carnagey.

We don't mind going to this length of explanation, because the same story in substance appeared the day before on the front page of The Sun and passed without comment.

We deeply deplore the fact that Professor Carnagey's name had to be dragged into a controversy by our blundering contemporary; but since The Sun is charged with harboring malice against him, why, The Sun shall reply.

The Sun's position in regard to the public school system of Paducah is too well established to need defense. Since the election of Professor Carnagey The Sun has declared editorially its policy of upholding the administration of the schools. Professor Carnagey on each visit to Paducah has called at The Sun office, and he knows, perhaps, even better than the omniscient editor of the News-Democrat, how he stands with the staff personally.

Some of the statements in the News-Democrat's editorial, outlining its policy toward the schools, may confuse its readers, in view of the attitude it has assumed toward the administration in the past. Many people remember its malevolent assaults on Superintendent Lieb, as well as other prominent citizens, for which humiliating apology was made and responsibility side-stepped. But the News-Democrat changes hands and staff and policy so frequently, it is scarcely to be expected that each succeeding regime should take cognizance of the vagaries of its predecessors.

As to the latest enunciation that it will support the schools, The Sun extends the hand of fellowship. As long as the News-Democrat speaks for the school system, we shall be on the same side—but the editorial leader in question is fled away to be flung back in the teeth of an erratic contemporary at its first exhibition of an inclination to attack somebody on personal grounds.

A man is unfortunate if he has a pistol in his pocket when an inclination to shoot overcomes him.

Anybody far-sighted enough to steal coal this kind of weather ought to get it.

Is it possible that we have been duped, and by a slant-eyed, saddle-colored oriental, at that? Is it true that some thin-haired, slope-shouldered son of the rising sun, in a mist suit of occidental clothes and a smile that won't rub off, has fooled us? Have those wise gazaboos at Washington, who know what the president is going to do before he thinks of it and sell it to the western newspapers per column, and talk of war in the Balkans during the congressional recess, been listening to the voice of this heathen Jap, interpreting articles from the Japanese newspapers that never were in print? To think that we have been stirred to a soul fever this hot weather, by the light footsteps of this little brown man, straying from the path of truth and virtue. Isn't there going to be any war with Japan? Isn't Japan stirred to her soul's center about the San Francisco incident? Unhappy thought! Maybe, it isn't even summer in Japan. Consider our stewing and raving in this tropical weather, and the Japs, possibly, eating snowballs and reading the "Vicar of Wakefield," or "Mosses from an Old Manse." And they say his name is Miyakawa. He must have been the Chufu correspondent of the Hearst Syndicate during the war.

ments of these interests. And this duty the administration ever keeps

before it.

Once upon a time Roosevelt was looked upon askance by those, who thought him reckless and dangerous.

He has proved himself to be otherwise. Slowly and cautiously, avoiding excesses, but withal, inexorable, the influx of the national federal courts

are grinding their grist of trusts, testing the laws as they proceed, showing us the limitations of the legislative, executive and judicial departments in the operation, and the end will come, when we see a readjustment of industrial and commercial conditions in this country, and not until then.

Meanwhile, let us not lend aid to the enemy through partisan malice.

With rare consistency our evening contemporary says: "The News-Democrat pleads above all else that politics be kept out of the school board. With such a loyal man and stalwart Democrat as Col. Joseph Potter at its head we feel that in the future that there will be less of this spirit manifested."

If we wanted politics kept out of anything, naturally we should choose a "stalwart Democrat" to keep it out.

LEST WE FORGET.

We always carefully preserve files of our contemporaries, not so much to conserve their wisdom, as to confront them with. The News-Democrat has declared that "under the present management" the paper has never traduced Superintendent Lieb; but we quote two statements made by that paper, both of them under the present management.

Under date of May 20, 1907, the News-Democrat in an article headed: "Paducah's Schools, They Are As Good As Any in the State of Kentucky," said:

"The public schools of Paducah are as good as can be found anywhere in the state of Kentucky."

Under the superintendency of Prof. Lieb the schools have been greatly improved, especially the High school, where he has added new studies. When he leaves his record will be one of which he can boast."

Last evening the News-Democrat said: "It nevertheless remains a fact that the Paducah schools under Prof. Lieb's management did not arrive at that proper degree of usefulness desired."

Now, will somebody please arise and say that one or the other of those statements appeared "during the absence of the general manager and through an innocent oversight on the part of the editor," and that the "News-Democrat, believing above all else in the common justice that is due every one, not only makes this statement as a matter of form, but takes greater pleasure in correcting a statement that should never have been made," etc?

BRIDGET HESSIAN

MOTHER OF WELL-KNOWN PATROLMAN DIES.

Mrs. Peter Mott, Mother of Mrs. Lloyd Boswell, Succumbs at Fulton.

Mrs. Bridget Hessian, mother of Patrolman Hessian, died yesterday at the home of her son, Patrick Hessian, at Memphis, of infirmities incident to old age. Mrs. Hessian was 74 years old and a native of Dublin, Ireland.

She came to this country with an elder brother 65 years ago, and grew to womanhood in Paducah, where she married Patrick Hessian, who died 32 years ago. For three years she had lived with her son in Memphis. She was a communicant of St. Francis de Sales church, and a devout, Christian woman.

The body of Mrs. Hessian will arrive this evening at 3:15 o'clock and it will be taken to the residence of Mr. John Hessian, 620 Tennessee street. The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at St. Francis de Sales church and the burial will be in Mt. Carmel cemetery. The palbearers will be Patrick Grogan, J. J. Dorian, Will Huffman, James

Ward, John Dougherty and Michael Kelly.

Mrs. Mott.

Mrs. Peter Mott, mother of Mrs. Lloyd Boswell, died at her home in Fulton. She was well known here, having visited her daughter often. Mrs. Boswell

Moyer said he and Haywood conferred with Attorneys Murphy and Miller and subsequently gave

Miller $1,500.

Moyer denied that he had ever discussed

any kind of criminal act with Orchard or any one else or that he had ever given him a cent except for expenses on the trip Orchard made to O'Quay as body guard for him. He said he had no personal feeling of hostility

for Stenmenberg and there were no circumstances that would make him desire the life of John Neville, whom Orchard testified that Moyer wanted to kill. Moyer said Neville came to him after his arrest for alleged complicity in the independent station affair and asked that the federation give him $200 to reimburse him for the expense he had incurred in clearing himself, but this request was refused.

Moyer denied that he participated in the conference in Pettibone's back yard where Orchard said he, Haywood and Pettibone had discussed various acts of violence, denied knowledge of the subsequent meeting at federation headquarters where Orchard

hostility for Stenmenberg and there

Neville executions were planned, and denied practically every material statement in all of Orchard's testimony. Moyer explained that Orchard accompanied him to O'Quay, because Orchard was going to Silvertown and they made the journey together as a matter of convenience.

Representatives of the union mine workers had been beaten by thugs employed by the mine owners and witness and Orchard carried out offshoots for their own protection.

Moyer swore his gun was subsequently used to kill Lyte Gregory, but that Orchard returned it to the witness when they got back to Denver and the weapon

SUBMIT REPORT ON HARRIMAN.

President and Attorney General Bonaparte Given Finding.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 11.—President Roosevelt today received the report of the interstate commerce commission setting forth facts and conclusions arrived at as a result of the investigation of E. H. Harriman's alleged manipulations of certain railroad finances.

A copy of the report also has been sent to Attorney General Bonaparte. The statement was made today by Secretary Loeb that Mr. Bonaparte's recommendations doubtless would be awaited by the president before he directed any further move.

The conclusions of the commission will not be made public until the attorney general's recommendations have been received.

FRANCE MAY TURN DOWN AMERICA'S TARIFF PLAN

Paris, July 11.—The government has made its first examination of the proposed tariff agreement between France and the United States which Ambassador Jusserand brought back with him to Paris, and the impression created is decidedly unfavorable. The proposals are being considered in a friendly spirit, but it is yet too early to indicate the nature of the counter propositions that France will make. It is almost certain, however, that France will conclude that the tariff concessions asked for by the United States are entirely out of proportion to what is offered.

PORTRAIT OF CZAR IS STOLEN.

Valuable Painting Taken From National Gallery in Berlin.

Berlin, July 11.—A valuable portrait of Emperor Nicholas, of Russia, has been stolen from the Berlin National gallery. The theft was discovered at the hour of closing, when the guardians noticed that the frame which hitherto contained the picture was empty. No trace of the theft has been found. The stolen portrait is striking. It is done in oils, and represents the emperor in a brilliant uniform mounted on horseback at the head of his staff.

Col. Lynch Set Free.

London, July 11.—On the eve of his visit to Ireland, King Edward has granted a free pardon to Colonel Arthur Lynch, who was convicted of high treason in 1902 for having fought in the Irish brigade on the side of the Boers in the South African war.

Colonel Lynch was sentenced to death in 1903, his sentence later was commuted to imprisonment for life, and 1 January, 1904, he was released "on license."

Sex of the National Bird.

It has been declared by a lecturer to the Mothers' club of New York city that the official eagle of this country, as shown in authorized designs, is female. The proof offered is the white tufts of feathers on head and breast. The female eagle is larger and stronger than the male. Most persons imagine the metaphorical bird as a male. Ornithologists say that the conventional design does not indicate the sex. But the law is plain. In the description of the seal accepted by the continental congress, June 20, 1782, the masculine pronoun "his" is used three times with reference to the bird.—Youth's Companion.

BUILDING FALLS KILLING 3

Thirty Men at Work on Side Which Gives Way.

Philadelphia, July 11.—Three men are known to have been killed, one fatally hurt and 18 others injured in the collapse of a new concrete building today at the plant of Bridgman Brothers company, in the southwestern section of the city. The building was just being roofed when a section about 30 feet in width and extending the entire depth of the structure collapsed. About 30 men were at work on the side which gave way, and they were carried down in the debris. The bodies of Marsh Hopkins and two unidentified negroes have been taken from the ruins. It is believed that there are others buried under the heavy mass of concrete.

LAW NOT TO BAR TIGHTS; LOW-NECK GOWNS AS BAD.

Madison, Wis., July 11.—After an hour of humorous discussion, the assembly killed the Hughes anti-tights bill, which prohibited any actress or woman performer from appearing in public with a skirt falling less than four inches below the knees. All of the speakers gravely asserted that they favored the bill, but Mr. Hughes was the only member who voted for it. Simon Smith, of Beloit, said a law should be passed requiring ball room gowns to come at least four inches above the waist line. He said that he believed society women offended as much against propriety in wearing extremely low-cut dresses as actresses did in wearing short skirts.

Cock of the Walk.
It is not often that a barnyard fowl attains neighborhood popularity, but such is the case with a large Massachusetts red rooster belonging to Charles Davis of St. John avenue. A few weeks ago Mr. Davis was attracted to his barnyard by the whines of a half-grown setter pup he was training. He found that the dog had been driven into a corner and was being savagely attacked by a big cock, and before he could interfere in behalf of the pup it had been pretty heavily marked by the rooster's spurs.

Since that time Red, as he has come to be called, has become the neighborhood bully and refuses to allow pigs or dogs to come within the grounds under his rule. Curiously enough, dogs will not fight back, but actually run from his assaults. As for gamecocks, he has probably thrashed more of them than any other bird in the city.—Kansas City Journal.

DENEEN WINNER

DOWN THE STATE

Illinois State Politics Warming Up Some

Conferences at Capital Indicate Governor Will Be Renominated Easily.

HOW THE SITUATION SUMS UP.

Springfield, Ill., July 11.—A review of the Deneen downstate campaign organization was begun today in Springfield, the governor receiving reports from congressional districts which have been canvassed to ascertain the strength of his candidacy. The most interesting of the political developments concerned the Eighteenth district, Speaker Joseph G. Cannon's home territory.

Postmaster William R. Jewell, of Danville, was one of those who responded to an invitation to visit the governor. He represents the men in Mr. Cannon's home town who formed the nucleus of the movement to secure for him the Illinois delegation to the national convention.

Just what Gov. Deneen said to Mr. Jewell or what Mr. Jewell said to the governor is not known, but Deneen petitions are on their way to Vermilion county, and will be circulated there without any opposition from the men who are endeavoring to make Mr. Cannon president. Mr. Jewell was informed that the Deneen organization will be for Mr. Cannon for president and representatives of the Eighteenth district say that every county in that territory will be for the governor.

No Deneen-Cannon Conflict.
Although it is denied that anything like a Cannon-Deneen combination has been made, or that there is any necessity for one, it is understood both Mr. Cannon and Mr. Deneen will get along without conflict. Men who are working for Mr. Cannon also will take care of the governor's petitions.

The men who attach themselves to the Deneen organization do so in writing, subscribing their names to the membership rolls of the "Charles S. Deneen Republican club." The membership blanks which they sign accompany the petitions, and are headed with the following statement:

The undersigned hereby enroll their names as members of the Charles S. Deneen Republican club of county, Ill., the purpose of which is to use all honorable means to nominate Charles S. Deneen as the Republican candidate for governor of Illinois at the Republican state convention for 1908. It is understood that no dues or financial obligations of any kind are incurred by becoming a member of said club.

Each one of the downstate leaders who has joined the Deneen organization has his name subscribed to this. Foresee Walkover for Governor.
From reports received today the Deneen men get additional assurance for their conviction that there will be no opposition to the governor in the primaries. They admit that this is an optimistic view to take of the situation, but assert that nothing has been discovered in the canvassing of the various counties to encourage the belief that any one will try to make the race. If there be no contest in Cook county they will consider the governor's renomination an assured fact.

In addition to receiving the representatives of congressional districts and individual counties the governor during the day was in communication by telephone with a dozen other counties.

Among the men who brought in word from downstate districts were United States Marshal Charles P. Hitch, Edgar county, Eighteenth district; Charles G. Eckhart, Douglas county, Nineteenth district; Col. Asa C. Matthews and Ray N. Anderson, Pike county; W. S. Horton, Peoria county; C. J. Doyle, Greene county; Homer J. Tice, Menard county; E. E. Hitch Sure of Eighteenth District.
Marshal Hitch, who was Senator Cullom's campaign manager in the primaries of last summer, says that every county in the Eighteenth district was carried for him if political indications are worth anything.

The governor himself does not know whether he will have to fight or not, and, while hoping for peace, is preparing for war if a contest is forced. He and his friends take the position that during the present administration there has been nothing done by the governor to create party discord and there will be nothing done now.

The Deneen campaign plan is to remain entirely on the defensive. The governor's friends say that in previous administrations the party has had well developed factional warfare by the second year of each governor and that thus far there has been none in Deneen's administration, saying that he has endeavored to prevent it so far as it was possible for a governor to prevent it.

While candidates for governor have not come out openly in the race yet, aspirants for the office of secretary of state are becoming more numerous every day. Fred Stirling, of Rockford, a member of the Pontiac board, makes the latest announcement. W. Scott Cowen, of Carroll county, another of the northern counties, has been regarded as a candidate for the place, and if he comes out Stirling will have an opponent in the northern tier.

Secretary Rose is a candidate for a fourth term in the office, and Cleo J. Lindly looks on the place with kindly eyes.

Pen Economy.
The merchant before filling his inkwell dropped in two or three old pens and poured the writing fluid upon them.

"Thus," he said, "I practice economy, prolonging three or four times the life of all my pens. You see, the corrosive power of the ink, which is immensely strong, vents itself in the old pens kept in the well and has little or no strength left wherewith to attack the pen I have in use. Try this scheme, young man, and you will find that your pens will practically never wear out."—New York Press.

BALLOON HOUSE

BLOWS DOWN IN HEAVY GALE AT SPITZBERGEN.

Walter Wellman's Expedition Meets Reverse at Outset That Will Take Time.

Spitzbergen, July 5, via Tromsø, Norway, July 11.—The balloon house of the Wellman-Chicago Herald Arctic expedition was damaged by a storm on July 4 and although the airship was uninjured, the accident probably will delay the departure of the expedition, the members of which, by dint of hard work all night long managed to save the building from being wrecked. The Frithjof dragged her anchors half a mile during the storm and will be dispatched to Tromsø for repairs.

All the members of Wellman's party are in good health. It is expected the start for the pole will be made in the beginning of August.

RAILROAD NOTES

Mr. James Harper, a car repairer in the Illinois Central shops, has returned to work after his recent illness.

Mr. Joseph Harper was painfully scalded yesterday on the neck by a steam hose blowing off and the steam and hot water rushed out before he could jump aside.

The old derrick, No. 72, is in the shops for repairs and a general overhauling. The work has been started and in about ten days it will be ready to be taken to Birmingham, Ala., on the Birmingham district, where it will be put in service. Since the new steel derrick has been in service here the wooden derrick has been on the side track.

Mr. Thomas McGargal, a pipe fitter at the Illinois Central shops, had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt yesterday while at work. Mr. McGargal was putting in a piece of piping under a car when an engine backed in and gently hit the cars before stopping. Fellow workmen shouted a warning and in trying to get out from under the car McGargal bruised his right shoulder. Mr. McGargal was not disabled by the accident and was on duty this morning.

Thomas Emerson, an employee in the blacksmith department of the Illinois Central shops, had three fingers on his right hand crushed yesterday. A piece of machinery weighing about 500 pounds was being removed and one time it was slipped a little too far and Emerson's hand was caught. The mangled fingers were dressed at the hospital.

An excursion will be run through Paducah Saturday from Fulton on account of the meeting of the Masons and Odd Fellows in Louisville. The excursion originates in Fulton and stops will be made at all stations along the line. The excursionists will return home Monday.

MAYFIELD.

Mr. Farrell is the rural mail carrier on route 12.

Ed Atkins, a prominent young man of Palmersville, dropped dead Monday while standing in shallow water in Obion river. In company with several friends he went in swimming. After swimming a while the bathers got on the bank and ran a foot race. While very warm from the exertion Athling waded into the water and suddenly fell dead.

Benton Wedding.

Saturday afternoon, at the residence of the Rev. N. S. Castleberry at Benton, Miss Georgia Fisher was united in marriage to Mr. Rip Wolfe, both of Benton. Mrs. Wolfe is the young daughter of Judge Fisher, and she is an attractive young woman with hosts of friends in Marshall county. Mr. Wolfe is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. Speer Stone, formerly of Benton, but now of Princeton. They left for Princeton after the ceremony to visit the groom's parents and where they will probably make their future home.

"Fighting Bob" Laughs.

War and rumors of war with Japan provoked a hearty deep-sigh yesterday from Rear Admiral Rowley D. Evans, who has taken up his headquarters on board his flagship, the Connecticut, which just at present is high and dry in dry dock at the Brooklyn navy yard.

When talk of war with Japan was mentioned the Rear Admiral chuckled and then remarked:

"It is silly. There is no more reason to think that because certain roughs in San Francisco wreck a Japanese restaurant it is a reason for war with Japan than to suppose that because hoodlums in Chatham Square throw bricks through a Chinese laundry's windows it is a cause of war with China."—New York Tribune.

I have enjoyed the best of health ever since. I trust this testimonial will appeal to other sufferers."—Cass. Blacklock, 1019 Irving Place, West Philadelphia, Pa.

The KING of DIAMONDS.

By Louis Tracy,

Author of "Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY EDWARD J. CLODE.

"Just for once, mamma, you shall not care a little bit, and none may be the wiser. Here is Mr. Anson—quite an elegant himself—he would never guess that our affairs were home-made."

"The women, dear one—they will know."

"Oh, you deceiver! You said you told me was perfect, and I am quite sure yours is."

"This logic was incontrovertible. Mrs. Atherley sighed and asked what took place the previous night."

Philip imagined that the girl hung back, so he boldly undertook an explanation. By describing the cabman as apparently intoxicated and certainly impudent he covered a good deal of ground, and the rest was easy.

When they reached the Savoy, the anxious mother had relegated the incident to the limbo of unimportant things. Only one other matter troubled her—the somewhat unconventional origin of her daughter's acquaintance with this pleasant mannered young gentleman.

She was far too tactful to hint at such a point just then. It should be reserved for home discussion.

Meanwhile they were early arrivals. The head waiter marshaled them to a window table. Mrs. Atherley smiled. She knew her London.

"You were sure we would accompany you?" she cried.

"Not at all sure; only hopeful," said Philip.

"Ah, well, it is good occasionally to revisit old scenes. No, Elif, I will sit here. I will not be in face to that row of tables. Half a dozen people would certainly recognize me, and I do not wish it."

Elif! The name drove Philip's thoughts backward with a bound—back to a torrential night in a London square and the tearing open of a carriage door in time to save a sweet little girl all robed in white who but for him would have fallen with an overturned vehicle.

Elif! It was an unusual pet name. The child of ten years ago would be about the age of the lively and spirituelle girl by his side. The child had faced her enraged uncle on that memorable night. The woman had refused to leave him when she thought danger threatened in the park.

Could it be possible? He was startled, bewildered, utterly dumfounded by even the remote possibility that another figure from the past should come before him in such wise.

"Mr. Anson! What have you found in the menu to perplex you so terribly? Does danger lurk in the ague and daintiness? Is there a secret horror in the saint?"

Evelyn's radiance restored his scattered wits.

"May I say something personal?" he inquired.

"About the lamb?"

"About you? Mrs. Atherley called you 'Elif' just now."

"Yes, I regret that I earned the title in ages past. The habits have ceased, but the name remains."

"I once met a little girl named Elif. It was ten years ago on a March evening in a West End square. There had been a carriage accident. A pair of horses were frightened by a terrific thunderstorm. The girl was accompanied by a somewhat selfish gentleman. He jumped out and left her to her own devices; indeed, slammed the door in her face. A ragged boy—"

"A boy with newspapers—a boy who spoke quite nicely—saved her by running into the road. The carriage over turned in front of Lord Vanstone's house. I was the girl!"

Both ladies were amazed at the expression on Philip's face. He betrayed such eagerness, such intense longing, such keen anxiety to establish her identity with the child who figured in an accident of no very remarkable nature, that they could not help being vastly surprised.

Their astonishment was not lessened when Philip exclaimed:

"And I was the boy?"

"But I said 'a boy with newspapers'."

"Yes, a very urchin, a waif of the streets."

"My uncle struck you?"

"And you defended me, saved me from being locked up, in fact?"

"Oh, this is too marvelous. Mother, you must remember—"

"My dear one, I remember the event as if it had taken place yesterday. Your uncle would not have cared were you killed that night. All he wanted was your money. Now he has that and mine. He was, indeed, a wicked man."

"Mother, dear, he is unhappy. Are we? But Mr. Anson, what wonderful change in your fortunes has taken place since our first meeting? Is the newspaper trade so thriving that a carriage and pair, a supper at the Savoy, stalls at the Regent's hall and a bouquet from Rosalind's are mere trimmings, so to speak, to a busy day?"

"Evelyn!" protested Mrs. Atherley. But the girl was too buoyant, too utterly oblivious of all that this meeting meant to Philip, to cease from chaffing him.

"Please, Mr. Anson, do tell us the secret. I will sell any paper you name. I get five guineas for singing two songs. I admit, but I may only sing them once a month. I have loads of time to run about crying 'Extre special! Orrible disaster!' Or does the magic spring from writing those thrilling stories one sees placarded on the boardings? I believe I could do it. I once won a prize in a lady's magazine for a set of verses, the genuine and unadorned production of a girl aged under fourteen."

Philip compelled himself to respond to her mood. He promised to reveal his specific for money making at some future period when she was sufficiently dazzled to accept his words as those of a prophet.

With the tact of a woman of the world, Mrs. Atherley led the conversation back to less personal channels. The great restaurant was rapidly filling now. The occupants of neighboring tables cast occasional glances at the merry trio which discussed the follies of the musical world, the ways of agents, the little meannesses and petty spite of the greatest artists and incidentally did ample justice to an excellent meal.

Philip thought he had never before met such a delightful girl. Evelyn was quite certain that some unknown good fairy had given her this pleasant acquaintance, and Mrs. Atherley, after a silent spasm of regret that her daughter should be denied the position in the greater world for which she was so admirably fitted, abandoned herself to the infectious gaiety of the younger people.

Both she and Evelyn confessed to a feeling of renewed surprise when Philip happened to mention his London address.

Whatever faults the denizens of Park lane may possess, that of being unknown cannot be reckoned among them, and Mrs. Atherley in a period not very remote knew the occupants of every house in that remarkable thoroughfare. She could not, however, recall the name of Anson.

At last a most enjoyable meal came to an end. Philip, supported most ably by a skilled head waiter, spun it out to the utmost possible limit, but the inexorable clock would not be denied.

He thought the two ladies might prefer to drive home alone, so he sent them away in his carriage and made an excuse that he had an appointment at his club. In truth he wished to be free to walk far and fast while his excited brain demanded a solution of the strange congeries of events which had so crowded into his life during forty-eight hours.

About the time that Philip's coachman safely deposited Evelyn and her mother at their residence Victor Grenier, again attired in evening dress and accompanied by Jocky Mason, whose huge frame was incased in a suit of gray tweed, entered a fashionable West End bar and found an elegant young person leaning against the marble topped counter, engaged in a war of wits with a barmaid.

The arrival of the two men, however, put a quick stop to the badinage. The youth quitted the counter with a careless discourtesy that annoyed the girl to whom he was talking.

"Well," he demanded from Grenier, "did anything happen?"

"Jimmie," was the cool reply, "I told you that your stupid ruse last night would result in failure. Far worse; it has supplied you with a rival against whom you may as well give up the game at once."

"Rot!" cried the other fiercely, with an oath. "Don't irritate me. Tell me plainly what has gone wrong now."

"She was there and sang delightfully. 'Pon my honor, she is a pretty girl. But the man was there, too, and he managed to improve so well on the opportunity you were kind enough to provide for him, Jimmie, that after her show was over she and her mother met him at the main entrance, and they drove off together to the Savoy in a carriage and pair."

"Then who the deuce is he?" demanded the angry youth.

"I tell you, Jimmie, you have no earthly chance. Last night's intruder was none other than Mr. Philip Anson, the millionaire."

"Philip Anson. Great Scott! He—of all men in the world!"

The younger man became very pale, and his eyes rolled in a species of delirious agitation. But Jocky Mason had caught the name, though he did not comprehend the exact subject of their discourse.

"Philip Anson?" he said. "If there's anything on foot where Philip Anson is concerned, count me as his enemy. Curse him! Curse him to all eternity!"

And he struck a table with his great fist until other men began to stare, and Grenier was forced earnestly to counsel his associates to control themselves in such a public place.

Raised His Ship From the Deep.
"A story of heroism of the sea rivaling that of Gilliat in 'The Terrors of the Sea,' has just been enacted in the Pacific ocean," said John P. Barnes, a San Francisco merchant. "It is the story of an intrepid sea captain who resurrected a sunken ship that had been given up for lost and put her in such good condition that she has broken all records for sailing craft around the Horn."

"This sea captain lived at San Diego until a year or two ago, having retired on a modest income. His name is Thayer. One day he read in the papers of an auction sale of the hulk of a ship in the South Seas. He went to San Francisco, where he found that the ship had been valued at $250,000 and had been grounded in a storm, deserted by the crew and supposedly pounded into a shapeless mass upon the rocks. But he thought he would take a chance, and so he bid her in for $1,100, getting a lawyer in Oakland to take a half interest.

"Getting together a wrecking crew, he traveled 7,000 miles to the island of Manga Riva, where, through heroic efforts and after many months, he got the ship to the level and towed her back across the smooth summer seas to San Francisco. There the vessel was rebuilt into a three-masted bark. Captain Thayer came on to Washington and got the government to register the British ship Pyrenees, for that was its original name, as the bark Manga Riva. Then, after the refitting had been completed, he sent her to Swansea, Wales. The bark made the fastest time ever attained by any sailing vessel between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans. Captain Thayer is now enjoying the income from his daring, and his name is being paraded up and down the Pacific coast among the marine folk as the modern Gilliat."—Washington Post.

Carelessness About Postage.
The carelessness of American business men in forwarding letters to foreign countries has become a decided nuisance, so that the British government has been called upon to protest against the number of letters, which arrive in that country insufficiently stamped. The penalty is double postage, but many persons refuse to make the payment, so the letters are returned and great inconvenience arises. The fault seems to lie with the carelessness of business men in allowing postage stamps to be affixed by office boys. There are few men who attend to this duty themselves or take the trouble to see that the duty has been properly performed. Thousands of letters for foreign cities are mailed with only a 2-cent stamp affixed. Others weighing more than one-half ounce carry only 5 cents. The office boy is apt to be in a hurry at the end of the day, and he affixes stamps with a recklessness which brings trouble.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

JAP ADMIRAL

GUEST OF NATION, WILL REMAIN UNTIL JULY 15.

Yamamoto Being Entertained and Interviewed in New York—War Fake.

New York, July 11.—Admiral Baron Yamamoto, one of Japan's most distinguished naval officers, is a guest of New York. The admiral and suite will remain until July 15.

The admiral's first day in New York was a busy one. He was interviewed by half a hundred reporters, had his photograph taken a score of times, received visits from Major General Frederick D. Grant, Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, Captain J. D. Adams, acting commander of the New York navy yard, and a number of other military and naval men, he also took a long automobile ride and dinner with members of his party.

In his interview the admiral deprecated the war scare which has recently appeared in both Japan and America. He said that no small incident could break the friendship which has existed for so many years between Japan and the United States, and that he thought the sensational press of the two countries was largely to blame for the war talk. As to the prospective transfer of the Atlantic battleship squadron to the Pacific coasts, that it was a matter solely for the American government to decide and one that did not interest him in the least, except in that it was a novel naval experiment.

Admiral Yamamoto took occasion to deny that on his return to Japan he would become the leader of the progressive party. He said he had served in one cabinet—he was minister of marine during the war with Russia—and that he had no desire to have anything to do with politics.

Weird and Growsome Collections.
A man in Bournemouth once connected with the criminal investigating department of Scotland Yard has a most weird collection. His portfolios contain all the official bills offering rewards for the apprehension of murderers and other serious offenders. Several of these wanted men read copies of these very bills posted in public places, among them being Lefroy, James Canham Read, Firth and Neil Cream. He has many varieties of bills offering rewards in connection with the Whitechapel murders; no bill was ever circulated in such thousands, and the "Ripper" tragedies cost the country an enormous sum for printing.

A newspaper cutting attached to a double-murder announcement in his collection was found in the possession of Nell Cream, perhaps the most callous murderer in the history of crime. The cutting relates to one of the horrid crimes with which he was charged, and is very neatly cut out, a slough the monster who performed the work had no tremor in reading of his ghastly deeds.

Mrs. Curtis, the wife of a Chicago journalist, possesses a growsome necklace, which was exhibited at the World's Fair. The necklace is composed of three rows of human eyes in a perfect state of preservation, polished and mounted in gold. The eyes were obtained from Peru, where the dead are buried in a sitting posture, and the hot, dry air acts more effectively than any embalming fluid in preserving them. A mummy can there be obtained for a sovereign, and the eyes alone are much cheaper. Polished and mounted as they are in this necklace, they make a very striking ornament. Mrs. Curtis is said to have worn the necklace once, and it was much admired until her friends were informed that they were petrified human eyes and not gems.

"You say you were in the saloon at the time of the assault referred to in the complaint?" questioned the lawyer.

"I was sor," replied the witness.

"Did you take cognizance of the barkeeper at the time?"

"I don't know what he called it, sor, but I took what the rest did."

Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Which do you prefer," said the artistic young woman, "music or poetry?"

"Poetry," answered Miss Cayenne. "You can keep poetry shut up in a book. You don't have to listen to it unless you choose."

Scoundrels Abroad in the Land.
Ray Forum and the Pilot man were not the only ones who suffered from the operations of the clothes line thief last week. The Rev. O. A. White reports the loss of a suit of underwear, but says he has another suit, so he is in better shape than the other losers. Ray doesn't mind his loss much, as he looks well with his coat buttoned up, and no one can tell from outside appearances whether the newspaper man has socks on or not. Therefore the affair is not so serious but that it might have been worse. What if the man had taken our pants? Gee!—The Pilot, Whitefish, Montana.

Artificial Raising of Lobsters.

Providence, R. I., July 11.—To live amongst lobsters from June to October seems an odd part of a college boy's education. Everybody, nearly, has awakened to the fact that the higher training of today embraces something besides Latin, Greek and mathematics, even if those studies are still a proper part of a liberal education. The story of Louis Agassiz's giving a student who came to him to learn zoology a lot of clam shells with instructions to take them away and study them is familiar to almost everyone. But for a group of husky young fellows to spend their whole summer in a sleepy fishing village incessantly feeding and observing schools of tiny lobsters, recording almost limitless statistical data in note books and drawing pictures of the diminutive beasts in their various stages of development—why, that's enough certainly to excite the laughter of weather-hardened old fishermen who have supplied the United States with sea food these many years, dredging the oysters of Narragansett Bay or following the sea from Nantucket to Barnegat.

Or rather, it would excite their laughter, except that the work of the college boys already bids fair to make it easier for the fisherman to get his living from the sea. Young lobsters, it is said, have not for many years been seen in such numbers as since the students began planting them, partly grown, along the shores. Soon the catch of sizable fellows will be increased, unless all signs fail. Consequently respect for the University's "book learning," as applied to the problem of preventing the extinction of our valuable shell fish is on the increase. The work of the commissioners of inland fisheries of the state of Rhode Island, as conducted by teachers and students of Brown University, has given hope that our descendants may also have lobsters. For the first time anywhere the problem of artificially raising these crustaceans, treasured by the chef and patrons of every American hotel and restaurant, has been successfully solved at the Wickford experimental station. Of one thousand little lobsters hatched under natural conditions from the egg clusters borne by the female parent, only one, it is estimated, ever reaches maturity. The rest, for the most part during the first few days of their lives, are devoured by other lobsters or by greedy fishes, or perish through other causes. In the hatching bags of the experiment station, on the other hand, as many as 480 out of 1,000 have been brought, at very small expense per thousand lobsters, up to a size at which they can be let loose with good chances that many of them will attain the inches prescribed by law for the fishermen.

Lobster Farm.

Even more remarkable results than this, it is the opinion of experts, may yet be shown by individuals who are willing to lock up capital in a crop that matures very slowly, but which, if successful, would yield large returns. The lobster farm is a possibility of the near future—a marine plantation among the wave washed rocks where the popular shell fish will be continually under the supervision of the owner from the summer days in which they are hatched as feeble, floating wigglers until five or six years later they are big enough for "Newburg" or "broiled live." There are those who foresee a long line of lobster holdings on the Atlantic coast from Labrador to the Delaware Breakwater. New England can not vie with the fertile west in raising corn and wheat; but neither can the west compete with the seaboard in producing lobsters.

Experts, at all events, from abroad, where the danger of losing the lobster altogether is also imminent, have visited the Rhode Island experiment station and been impressed with its work. The United States hatchery at Boothbay Harbor in Maine, which has heretofore simply attended to hatching the eggs and letting loose the young lobsters in the first stage of their growth, is reported to be about to adopt the plan of rearing that has been found successful at Wickford. So set, a cloud of the larvae free in the ocean has been found to be mainly an excellent means of feeding other fish.

While, therefore, the young biologists of the university at Providence have been pursuing during the vacation months college studies that count as part of their regular work they have also been assisting in a very important industrial undertaking. For the past six or seven years under the direction of Professor A. D. Mead, of the department of biology at Brown, who has also for some years been in the service of the Rhode Island commission of inland fisheries, a number of students who have attained some proficiency in the natural sciences have each year served with the assistant director in charge of the work, Ernest W. Barnes.

Process of Rearing.

The process of rearing consists essentially in getting a lot of the little fellows—twenty thousand is the ordinary number—into a great square canvas bag or wooden tub in which the water is kept constantly in a circular whirl by a revolving paddle. Food—finely ground clams, usually—is dropped into the swirl every three or four hours, night and day. The new born lobsters are greedy little beggars, and they will eat each other up if they are not kept moving and at the same time furnished plentifully with other food. Even in the best regulated breeding bag more or less cannibalism occurs, but not enough of it to prevent a goodly proportion of the lobsters surviving to the age proper for liberation.

The supply of larvae comes, of course, from full grown egg lobsters, taken by fishermen from the waters of the bay. All winter long the female crustacean bears, exposed on the under part of her body, great clusters of eggs—from 3,000 to 100,000 in number, according to her size. In June and July these hatch out. Throughout the spring months the experiment station at Wickford offers a premium for good-sized lobsters "in berry," as the technical term is. The offerings are usually sufficient for the purpose in hand.

Experts can tell by the look of the lobster's eggs when they are ready to hatch. Into one of the rectangular canvas bags, with the water still, are plunged a score or more of the females whose broods are just about to break through the shells of the eggs. Soon the water is alive with a cloud of tiny larvae, mostly all stomach and eyes and antennae. As soon as the number is estimated to be about 20,000 the mother lobsters are removed and the great paddle, set somewhat like the fan that shoos flies in a restaurant, and actuated by the engines on the house boat, begins to rotate. From then on until they have reached what the naturalists call "the fourth stage" the youthful lobsters are literally in the swim. Day and night the paddle keeps the waters stirring, enough coming through the sides of the bag so that it is always fresh and pure.

The Development.

Each stage of the lobster's early development has its technical peculiarities. The main point is that the little creatures molt frequently until, anywhere from ten to sixteen days after birth, they have passed the period in which they swim helplessly about in the water seeking whom to devour or by whom to be devoured, and have reached the age in which they begin to hide from their foes by burrowing under rocks or roots. Arrived at the fourth stage they are so far able to take care of themselves that it is the custom of the Wickford station to release them then, though as a demonstration they have on several occasions been carried several stages further. In order to add to the effectiveness of the system the young lobsters, when introduced from artificial to natural conditions, are not simply dumped overboard, thus to attract a school of voracious fish. The rare taken by the assistant scientists from the university and are deposited, a few at a time, among the roots of sedge grass or along a pebbly beach.

The mothers, too, are allowed to go after the eggs are all hatched, but not without taking a souvenir from the station. To the back of each is attached a copper tag bearing a number and the words "Return to Rhode Island Fish Commission." Such a practice has not arisen from boyish prank-playing. Many of the tags are returned by fishermen and data are thus gathered as to the distances which full-grown lobsters migrate, the time that elapses between the end of the egg hatching and the next casting of the shell, and similar objects of quest.

GERMS IN THE SKIN

SCIENCE IN PURSUIT.

Eczema Sufferers Will Be Interested In a Pamphlet on Diet, Exercises, Etc., Which May Be Had Free at R. W. Walker & Company's Drug Store.

The eczema germ is a curious parasite. Scientists accustomed to the daily use of the microscope find difficulty in detecting it.

The germ lives only in the skin, and multiplies where the skin is weak and susceptible. It feeds on the oily substances, developing at the rate of thousands and tens of thousands daily. Nature combats them, but if the skin is weak the germs must be destroyed by an external remedy.

Oil of wintergreen properly mixed with other soothing ingredients is the best remedy yet found for all kinds of skin trouble. But oil of wintergreen alone will not suffice, and it is only when properly combined—as in D. D. D. Prescription—that we get a liquid that really cures while instantly relieving the itch.

"I wish to thank the wonderful cure that the D. D. D. Prescription did for my baby boy that had eczema," says Mrs. A. L. Workman, of No. 3, Wights Add., Trinidad, Col. "We bought only one bottle after using the trial bottle and he has been cured for three months or more and no symptoms of it coming back."

D. D. D. Prescription is a mild soothing liquid made for a number of years by a Chicago company. It is no ordinary patent medicine and we thoroughly investigated the merits of the remedy before recommending it to people in our own town.

R. W. WALKER & CO., Druggists.

Call at our store and we shall be glad to show you a bottle of the remedy, and no matter whether you buy the remedy, we will be glad to give you a pamphlet free of charge, this pamphlet telling about the diet, exercise, clothing and other treatment required for skin sufferers.

LIGHTNING BOLT

KILLS ESTIMABLE YOUNG MAN IN THE OAKS SECTION.

Father and Four Sons Baling Hay When Stroke Comes—Stuns the Others.

Guy Lawrence, 18 years old, son of W. A. Lawrence of the Oaks section of the county, was killed by lightning yesterday evening, while working on the farm of John Herzog, a mile from his home. The bolt struck the lad in the neck and seared his body to his toes, killing him instantly.

Mr. Lawrence with his four sons had been baling hay on the Herzog place and when the casualty occurred, Guy Lawrence had just driven up a team of mules, hitched to a wagon, to take the party home.

The mules were killed and the rest of the party stunned, when the young man fell headlong from the wagon dead.

Samuel Given was near by measuring timber, and assisted in restoring the others and carrying the body of the unfortunate young man to his home.

The Lawrences are a highly respected family in that community. The burial took place this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Symsonia cemetery.

The Telephone Ear.

Young women who earn their living as telephone operators may be interested in the results of Dr. N. R. Blegvad's investigations of the ears of 418 women telephone operators in the employ of the telephone company at Copenhagen, Denmark. The same telephone instruments are used there that are used in New York. Each operator attends to from 80 to 120 subscribers. The average calls are 125 an hour, increasing at times to 200.

The results of the investigation may be given as follows: 1. Of the 418 girls examined 47 showed pronounced pathological changes of the ear drum, leaving 371 with a normal membrane. Of these 26.4 per cent showed a retraction of the membrane of the ear used for the receiver. 2. The work does not produce a diminution of the faculty of hearing in healthy organs, neither is this sense increased, but the ear becomes accustomed to its duty and can thus accommodate itself to the conversation.

The lower sound limit is higher than in the normal ear, excluding therefore the deepest sounds, while nothing can be stated about the higher sound limit. 3. It could not be demonstrated that the work had a bad influence upon disease of the ear. But it was found that sudden noises, including that of thunder, could induce a recurrence of a chronic malady or produce a new disease. 4. On the other hand, it was found that the work gave rise in nervous girls to headaches. Thus it would appear that the occupation of telephone operators is about as healthful and suitable for young women in good health as any other.—Brooklyn Tagline.

The Greater Love.

I do not ask that you may come to me With outstretched hands and words that may be sweet When I am lonely in adversity And bear the aching bruises of defeat.
